4. Then see the last pages for what the full edition adds and where to get it.

> NOTE — Numbers in this sample
> Figures reflect public information as reported through November 2026 and change often. All amounts are in US dollars. Always confirm live figures in the platform's own dashboard or with the relevant authority.

CHAPTER 01

The Business of Attention

How social media monetization actually works

Before touching a single settings menu, it helps to understand the machine you're plugging into. Every monetization program on every platform is a downstream effect of the same underlying business: platforms sell attention to advertisers, and creators are the ones who manufacture that attention.

CHAPTER 1 AT A GLANCE

3 sides
viewers, creators, advertisers

2 kinds of money: Platform vs Audience

3 checks
every gatekeeper runs on you

6 stages
from reach to diversified income

1.1 The three-sided marketplace

Every major social platform runs a three-sided marketplace:

WHO PAYS WHOM

- Viewers trade time and personal data for entertainment, information, or connection -- for free.
- Creators trade content and audience-building effort for reach, tools, and (eventually) a cut of revenue.
- Advertisers/buyers trade money for access to viewers' attention, targeted by what platforms know about them.

© 2026 MotionForty

Creator monetization programs exist because platforms discovered a simple fact: if creators aren't paid, they eventually stop producing, and the platform runs out of content worth advertisers' money. Every payout you receive -- an ad-share payment, a gift, a subscription -- is the platform routing a sliver of advertiser or subscriber money back to you to keep you producing. This is why almost every program ties payouts to retention metrics (watch time, repeat visits, session length) rather than to raw views: the platform is paying for the behavior that makes its ad inventory more valuable, not for your effort.

1.2 Two kinds of money

It helps to sort every monetization method in this book into one of two buckets:

	Platform Money	Audience Money
Who pays you	The platform (from its ad pool, bonus fund, or gifting cut)	Your audience or a brand, directly
Who controls the rate	The platform, unilaterally, and can change it anytime	You, or a negotiation you're part of
Ceiling	Low-to-moderate per view; capped by algorithm & fund size	Effectively uncapped
Examples	Ad revenue share, bonus/incentive programs, tipping/gifts	Subscriptions, brand deals, affiliate, your own products
Strategic role	Early cash flow while you're building an audience	The actual business, once you have distribution

> This preview shows about half of Chapter 1. The full chapter continues with the remaining sections, a chapter recap and a self-check quiz with an answer key.

CHAPTER 02

The Monetization Toolkit

Eight revenue models every platform reuses

Facebook, Instagram, TikTok, YouTube, X, and Threads look different, but underneath they combine the same eight revenue mechanisms in different proportions. Learn these once and every platform chapter becomes a matter of "which of these eight does this platform offer, and under what rules."

2.1 The eight models

> TIP — The rest of this chapter is in the full edition
>
> This preview shows about 30% of Chapter 2. The full chapter continues with the remaining sections, a chapter recap and a self-check quiz with an answer key.

CHAPTER 12

Getting Paid and Staying Compliant (excerpt)

Payouts, withholding and your local tax rules

GETTING PAID AT A GLANCE

US$
most platform payouts are made in US dollars

30%
standard US withholding on US-viewer earnings when no treaty rate applies

W-8BEN
US form non-US creators file to claim a treaty rate

Local
your own tax authority decides what you owe at home

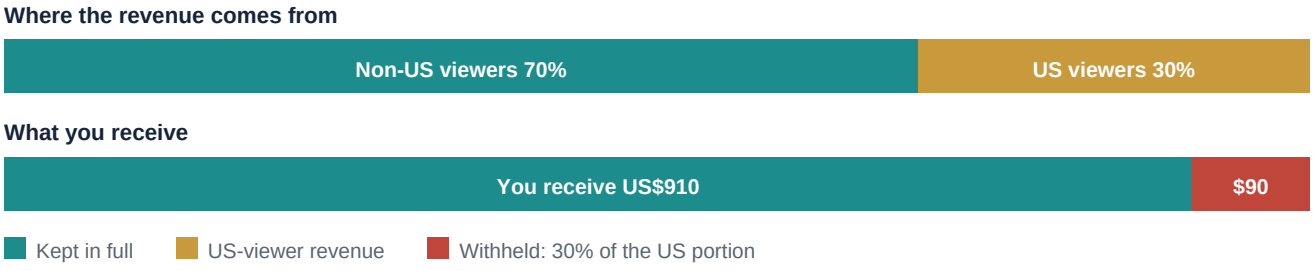
NOTE — About this excerpt

This excerpt from Chapter 12 of the full edition shows two of its most practical parts: the worked example of US withholding on YouTube earnings, and the seven-habit compliance checklist. The full chapter also covers program availability by country, payout routes, the questions to ask about income tax in your own country, sales tax, disclosure rules and routes to income beyond platform payouts.

12.3 US tax withholding: why up to 30% can come off US-viewer earnings

US law requires platforms such as Google to withhold tax from non-US creators on income from US viewers. The rate depends on whether your country has an income-tax treaty with the United States and whether you have filed the right information: without a treaty rate the standard rate is 30%, and with a treaty and a valid form it can be lower. It can apply to ad views, YouTube Premium revenue, Super Chat, Super Stickers and memberships. Only the US-viewer portion is affected, not earnings from the rest of the world.

WORKED EXAMPLE: US$1,000 OF MONTHLY YOUTUBE REVENUE, 30% FROM US VIEWERS



Illustrative arithmetic at the 30% standard rate. Check your own US-viewer share in YouTube Analytics (geography filter).

© 2026 MotionForty

1. In AdSense, open Payments -> Manage settings, scroll to your payment profile and edit United States Tax.
2. Submit the tax information even if you expect the full rate: if no information is on file, sources report that withholding can be applied to worldwide earnings (figures of up to 24-30% are cited), which is far worse.
3. Find out whether your country has an income-tax treaty with the United States and what rate it gives; your tax authority or a tax adviser can tell you.
4. Estimate the impact by filtering YouTube Analytics to the United States and applying your withholding rate to that portion.
5. Other platforms ask for similar tax details before paying; complete whatever form they request and keep a copy.

12.8 Your compliance checklist

SEVEN HABITS THAT KEEP YOU SAFE

1. Submit platform tax information early
   W-8BEN or the equivalent in AdSense and any other platform that asks, before your first payout.
2. Keep creator money in its own bank account
   Every payout, brand payment and refund then has a clear trail.
3. Log all income, including gifts and free products
   Write down the date, source, US$ amount and the fair market value of non-cash items.
4. Track expenses and keep receipts
   Internet, equipment use, editing, software and other costs wholly for the work.
5. Set aside tax from every payment
   Reserve a percentage so the annual bill is never a surprise.
6. File on time and keep your records
   Confirm your country's deadlines and record-keeping period every year, and ask an adviser about advance or estimated payments.
7. Review once a year with a professional
   Structure, sales tax or VAT, e-invoicing and withholding treatment all change as income grows.

> NOTE — Check your own country's rules
> Tax and legal rules differ everywhere. For every topic in this chapter, look up your own tax authority, your local sales tax or VAT rules, your advertising regulator and your data-protection law, or ask a qualified local adviser.
